

Questions for Conversation

031322

How has God been speaking to you lately? (Question is about both the means and the content)

What questions do you have about this week's sermon?

What is so bad about greed's internal damage?

What is your picture of a secure and comfortable life in which your needs and desires are met?

What possessions and purchasing behavior fit that picture?

What sorts of desires and fears drive your saving and spending?

How can you help yourselves (and each other) remember that you have enough and that God is enough?

What do you think of Wesley's MSG?

What thoughts do you have about Rob connecting greed with mercy?

Share and prayer.

Here is a dimension on the topic that I (Rob) is debating whether to address at the time of writing these. Warning: it is a little theoretical and may take things off topic.

Some feel that greed is not only bad for the greedy person but that it is also about injustice to others. What do you think about that? It seems to be based on an assumption of scarcity and limited resources. (People should not expect to be in agreement on it)
