What is the most momentous experience of your life (or family's legacy)? It could be good or bad.

How might God be wanting to give it new meaning? How might he want you to understand it anew?

Why do you think we tend to want a "go-between"? Are we afraid of a direct encounter with God, not sure how it happens, don't really think God does that any more, or what?

What might the Test of Bread be for you today? How is the situation you are presently facing an opportunity to show your trust, reliance, and dependence on God?
